Investigation Results

I talked to Gary Cooley, the operations manager at Guildmaster. He said they have an enamel spray booth and the cleaning there is done with lacquer thinner. The latex painting operation is also cleaned up with lacquer thinner which is hauled off by Superior Solvents (also hauled to Indiana). Gary said they sometimes wash the brushes in the sink. He said their rags are washed by Colonial Linen. I checked the area around the back door. There were a couple of empty gallon paint cans and a couple of empty 5-gallon plastic paint buckets. There was some paint on cardboard lying near the dumpster.
