National walking advocate Mark Fenton in Springfield today

Nationally known walking advocate Mark Fenton highlights a day of walking and biking activities on and near The LINK Thursday, March 6, including:

- 9 a.m. Ribbon-cutting ceremony on the Talmage Trail, Doling Park
- 9:30 a.m.-3 p.m. Mobile Summit on The LINK, Doling Park to The Meyer Center
- 6 p.m.-9 p.m. Ozark Greenways Annual Membership Meeting at Hammons Heart Institute

Mark Fenton is a transportation, planning, and public health consultant, author, host of the PBS series America's Walking, and an active transportation advocate. An adjunct associate professor at Tufts University's Friedman School of Nutrition Science and Policy, he combines a public health perspective with engineering expertise (BS and MS degrees from MIT) to provide innovative community level program, design, and policy solutions to create more pedestrian-bicycle- and transit-friendly settings. Fenton will share his insights about Springfield's progress in becoming more a bicycle- and pedestrian-friendly community.

"Mark Fenton is a leader in promoting community health and fitness and active lifestyles, and he's a great dynamic speaker," said Terry Whaley, Executive Director of Ozark Greenways. "Every time I've seen him, I've been ready to get up out of my chair and get moving before his presentation was finished."

The day begins with a 9 a.m. ribbon-cutting ceremony for the Talmage Trail, coordinated by Springfield Public Works at Doling Park, 301 E. Talmage St. Talmage Trail is the newest section of The LINK, an 8-mile north-south bicycle and walking route connecting Doling Park with Cox South. Talmage Trail is the northern 1/3-mile section of The LINK, connecting Kearney Street to Doling Park with a combination of on-street bike lanes, paths and off-street trails.

After the ribbon cutting, Fenton will join the local officials and the Healthy Living Alliance for a Mobile Summit, travelling the entire route of The LINK by bike and on foot. The Healthy Living Alliance is a network of more than 30 organizations working to encourage healthy, active living in Springfield. Ozark Greenways has been a key partner since the alliance began in 2011. The Mobile Summit begins at Doling Park and follows The LINK to Boyd Elementary, Drury university, Missouri State University's Plaster Student Union, Fasnicht Creek, Holland Elementary, the Meyer Center, and ends at A&B Cycle. Bikes and shuttles are available.

Fenton's visit concludes with Ozark Greenways' 23rd Annual Membership Meeting, held at Hammons Heart Institute, 1325 E. Cherokee St. Social hour is from 6-7 p.m., including heavy appetizers, with a program to follow. Fenton will speak about his observations in Springfield and how it compares with other bicycle- and pedestrian-friendly cities.

All events are free and open to the public.

Since 1991, Ozark Greenways has been preserving greenway trails in and around Springfield for public recreation, health and alternative transportation. Today thousands of people of all ages, abilities and economic backgrounds use Ozark Greenways' 66+ miles of trails. It's typical to see entire families walking, biking or running together. Ozark Greenways is an active partner with Springfield Public Works' ongoing expansion of the city's on-street bike route network, including The LINK. Through Ozark Greenways' public-private partnership, Springfield has been designated a Bicycle Friendly Community by the League of American Bicyclists until 2019.
